WILCOX & GIBBS SEWING MACHINE.

We would call attention to the following facts in connection with this Machine, which renders it superior to any other in use:

It forms a flat elastic seam which will not rip in wear,

It is entirely noiseless;

A patented device prevents its being turned backward;

The needle cannot be set wrong;

Can be used successfully without other instructions than accompany the Machine;

It received the Gold Medal of the American Institute in 1863. For particulars, enquire of Notice to all Persons having Demands on the Government.

PENSIONS, BOUNTY, PRIZE-MONEY, PATENTS, Pay for Vouchers, Scrip, Back Pay, Lost Horse and Spoliation Claims obtained by the undersigned, who will attend to all other business before the Departments at Washington City.

Soldiers becoming disabled or diseased while in the service, are entitled to a Pension. Those who served in any war previous to the 3d of March, 1855, are entitled to Bounty Land. Those who served in the Navy during the late war, and were legally attached to a vessel or squadron on duty, although not participating in the taking of prizes, are entitled to Prize Money. In many Indian Treaties provision is made for payment of Spoliation Claims out of Annuities. To collect the large number of such claims now owned in this country,—for the settlement of which no similar provision has been made by treaty—demand should be made at once therefor of the proper Department, and, if found just, recommendation will be made to Congress to pass an act refunding the amount thereof out of the Annuities.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 20, 1865.

The doings of Congress are at an end for a short time. Honorable members are exceedingly fond of "the holidays," and will not be cheated out of their usual adjournment. This year they made it a week longer than usual. The "radicals" glad to postpone action upon the subject of "reconstruction" join in with the lazy's and the fun-loving members, and thus carry the adjournment. It is perhaps just as well, but the members may not think so next summer when hot weather and cholera make their appearance.

Congress has taken several more steps in the "reconstruction" business. The Senate, it is now understood, is more conservative than the House, for it would not agree to the Stevens' joint resolution without amending it. There were good sound reasons for the amendment by the Senate, for by the original resolution that body was entirely shut off from debate on this question and was entirely at the mercy of the House. Now, the Senate has always, even in the most pro-slavery times, insisted upon open debate. No "previous question" has ever been established in the Senate, nor will ever be. So the Republican Senators refused to agree to the Stevens resolutions. There was another point which the Senate could not overlook. The House appoints nine members upon the committee—the Senate but six. So, practically, the Senate gave up its Constitutional privilege of judging of the election qualifications of its members into the hands of the House. This it could not consent to do and it amended the resolution, then passed it. Yet there were two or three foolish contrary Republican Senators who refused to agree to the resolution even in its amended shape, which simply coins a Committee of Investigation. As near as I can learn the President is satisfied with the action of the Senate. The House passed the Senate amended resolution with some grumbling, and then passed one for itself (not a concurrent resolution) which closes all debate on every resolution and paper offered (touching the subject,) and also binds the House to admit claimants to seats from the rebellious States till after the Senate and the House have agreed that the States, whose representatives offer for seats, are entitled to representation.

The feeling of the House on the subject must be very strong, or this resolution could not have passed so easily as it did. The vote stood 107 to 56! In this 56 were a number of Republican votes, but the majority is almost two-thirds. The President is somewhat disheartened by this vote, if one may trust the reports of members who have talked with him on the subject. It shows he thinks that the House is determined that the Southern claimants shall not be admitted under any circumstances. Still there is no telling what the influence of the President will eventually accomplish.

The President has had several interviews, of late, with the more prominent members of Congress. In several interviews, he has sent for members for the purpose of discovering the prospects of the South and his own and Congressional plans for restoring the Southern people to their old relations with the Government. I have seen several of these persons, and they speak in the same way of the position of the President. He greatly desires that the States recently in rebellion shall be admitted to representation as soon as it is safe. He does not hesitate to own his opinion to be that it is safe as soon as the Southern States repudiate the rebel debt and agree to the Constitutional Amendment. He says nothing now respecting the civil rights of the black man—that is his right to testify in the courts, though not many weeks ago, he distinctly informed the South that it should give the black man the right to give in evidence in the courts. Tennessee still obstinately refuses to do this, and it is probable, for that reason, will be denied admission for a time. [Tennessee has since granted the blacks the right to testify in the courts.—ED.] Mr. Wilson, of Iowa, and other prominent "radicals," had an interview with the President last Friday, and this whole subject was thoroughly discussed, and with great boldness and freedom on the part of Mr. Wilson. The latter gentleman said that he was aware that he did not agree with the President's views upon this subject, and all he asked was that he (the President) would "tolerate differences of opinion," and would not attempt to crush those members who felt bound by their consciences to disagree with him, by using his vast patronage against them. Mr. Johnson intimated that he had no such disposition, and that he would treat with the utmost kindness all Republicans who were disposed to take up the subject in a candid manner, with the purpose of doing as well as they could. But he also hinted that he did not feel very friendly towards certain Republican members, who evinced a disposition to oppose him and his plan of restoration.

In an interview with Mr. Dawes, the President was openly frank. He is satisfied with the conduct of this member although he voted for the Joint Committee, and is doubtless opposed to the early admission of Southern claimants. It is the spirit of the extremists to which he objects.

Mr. Henderson introduced a resolution into the House the other day which had the honor of receiving every vote in the House—152 in number. The essence of this resolution was in this statement—Treason is a crime that should be punished. Even the Copperheads said "aye" to that! Mr. Henderson should have taken one step further and then he would have got the opposition into a "fix." He should have tried the House on the proposition that Jeff. Davis is guilty of treason. I don't believe there is a member of the opposition who would venture to say "nay" to that proposition.

Mr. Henderson has also introduced a bill granting land to the State of Oregon for the purpose of building a military wagon road from the Dalles on the Columbia river by way of Camp Watson to Fort Boise; also a bill declaring the road from Auburn, in Baker county, to Clarksville to be a military road. Mr. Henderson is not neglecting the interests of his constituents. In the Senate Mr. Williams and Mr. Nesmith have not had the opportunity to do much, but they have several bills ready to offer.

Since my last letter the Southern States have made a little progress in the work of "reconstruction." Two or three Governors—elected recently—have been inaugurated and seem to occupy the place of "honorary" chief magistrates, for the President does not as yet dismiss his Provisional Governors, though in a letter to the Provisional Governor of Georgia he intimates that he will soon dispense with his services. Daniel Worth has been inaugurated Governor of North Carolina. All the Republicans in this city from that State assert that Mr. Worth is a reliable Union man, was never mixed up with the rebellion, while Provisional Governor Holden was for a long time a rebel. Yet in spite of these objections, Gov. Holden seems to have a steady hold upon the affections of the President. His recommendations for appointment to office in that State have very generally been adopted and his influence is still very decided. Mr. Worth is unquestionably a trustworthy Union man and will stand by the President in his general policy. Governor Jenkins, the new Governor of Georgia, like Mr. Worth of North Carolina, is believed here to be a trustworthy man, whatever his antecedents may be. He is now honestly for the Union. Here are two elected Southern Governors who stand with the President on three important questions—the adoption of the Constitutional Amendment, the repudiation of the rebel debt, and the protection of the freedmen. This is making advance certainly on the part of the States recently in rebellion in the business of reconstruction, though Congress made little, and doubtless for very good reasons.

The President is evidently dissatisfied with the course of the Louisiana Legislature in reference to extending the right of testifying in the courts to the freedmen, for through his orders Gen. Fisher has issued an order requiring all cases heretofore tried before the municipal authorities, in which negroes are concerned, shall be tried in courts established by the Freedmen's Bureau. This shows the disposition of the President. He means to make use of the Freedmen's Courts till the States recently in rebellion give the black man the right to testify in the courts. Congress, on the other hand, is not disposed to admit any of the claimants until their State Legislatures pass laws admitting the freedmen to the courts as witnesses.

There is an evident disposition on the part of the President to withhold nominations to prominent offices for the present, perhaps until he sees what action Congress will take upon the reconstruction business. The New York Republican delegation were before him two or three days ago upon the appointment of a collector in the place of Preston King, and he told them he should take his time in making the nomination to the Senate. They came away with a very decided opinion that the President has made up his mind to carry through his plans of reconstruction if he can do so by the use of his influence.

Since the above was written the President has given notice to the elected Governor of Alabama that the provisional Governor of that State has ceased to exist. Alabama therefore is "restored" so far as the President is concerned, though I believe the troops are not withdrawn, nor have the officers of the Freedmen's Bureau been withdrawn. The President will doubtless take the same course in Alabama in this matter that he does in Tennessee. There a slave Union State exists, but the Legislature is direlict in doing its duty towards the freedmen, and the President brings all cases in which negroes are involved into the Freedmen's Courts. It were idle to deny that there is a good deal of feeling in Congressional circles upon these acts of the President. It is natural that there should be, though with good management there will be no rupture between him and Congress.

The papers all publish the fact that Hon. Cornelius Cole has been elected Senator from California to succeed Mr. McDougall. The election gives much satisfaction here, for McDougall has not only disgraced California but the United States Senate by his conduct during the last few years. Yet he is naturally a man of good talents and would have made his mark here if he could have let strong drink alone. I have not seen him in his place in the Senate this session, and it may be that he will have the good sense not to take his seat. He has come upon the Senate floor two or three times when it was not in session—once in particular he came there tipsy, and one of his old friends cut him—refused to shake the hand proffered him.

The remonstrance of California against Sherman's bill on mines and mining, have reached here by telegraph, and will have a very decided effect upon Congress.

Gratz Brown's bill establishing a Southern Pacific Railroad, is talked of in railroad circles. I do not think it will pass this session. Congress must build one road before it attempts to pay for three, and this seems to be the sentiments of Congress so far as I can understand it.

There was an exciting scene in the Senate yesterday. Upon the reading of the report of General Grant upon his recent southern tour, Mr. Sumner arose and denounced the President and his brief message which introduced the reports of Grant and Howard to Congress. There was much excitement, and Mr. Sumner was urged by other Senators (on the Republican side) to modify his remarks, but he declined. ONCE A WEEK.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE

FRIDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 2, 1866.

THE UNION STATE CENTRAL COMMITTEE

Are requested to meet at SALEM ON THURSDAY THE 15TH DAY OF FEBRUARY next. W[illegible] vacancies [illegible] occur in the Committee [illegible] County Committees [illegible] attendance at that time. I. R. MOORES,

Chairman Union State Central Committee

Salem, Oregon, Jan. 1st, 1866.

The Doctrine of Protection

A movement is on foot at the East to obtain the repeal of the existing impost laws and to establish, practically, the system of free trade. In New York a Free Trade League is organized, the object of which is to prevail on Congress to remove the duties from most articles of foreign manufacture, and to greatly reduce the customs on those commodities which may not be wholly exempted from the tax on importations. It is proposed to abolish duties on all except a few articles, such as may be considered things of luxury rather than of necessity. The idea is that free trade will greatly conduce to the prosperity of the country, and that the Government by removing the tariff on foreign goods, will be able to derive a much larger revenue from excises than it now obtains. This proposition will not bear examination.

Remove the imposts from all or nearly all commodities, and the revenue derived from excises would be diminished rather than augmented. The domestic producer could not compete with the foreign manufacturer, because labor is cheaper abroad than here. Our manufactories would gradually stop operations, and the persons to whom these branches of industry give employment, would be necessitated to seek other occupations. They would generally have to resort to tilling the soil for a livelihood. This would greatly increase the number of producers and lessen the number of consumers. The result would be a great diminution in the value of agricultural produce. As a further consequence we should find that the revenue which is obtained from these products (amounting at present to a very considerable part of the excise tax) would be much reduced. Thus we should be deprived of the power of competing with foreign countries in the manufacture of goods, while the incomparable agricultural resources of this country could not be made available for the purpose of furnishing a revenue for the Government.

So far from the tariff being excessively high, it is easy to demonstrate that on many articles it is not high enough. Take iron for an example. At present we are actually paying foreign countries a premium on the article. The English manufacturer is now selling iron in this country by paying a tariff not so large as the tax which is required of the domestic producer. An intelligent writer shows that the import duty on foreign iron is $15 50 per ton, while the internal taxes on the American producer amount to $16 23. Now, when we consider that labor in England is vastly cheaper than in the United States, there is no wonder that our mountains of iron lie unopened and that England has the monopoly of this great branch of industry; while American labor is prevented from entering one of the most profitable fields which the great diversity of our resources presents. Herein we see the reason why the iron mountain near Portland lies unworked, and why a mine which could be made to yield larger sums of money than can be produced from the richest silver ledge of Idaho, is now hardly noticed or thought of.

A suitable prohibitory tariff on articles we might, and would manufacture for ourselves were we so protected that we could compete with foreign labor, would soon make our State teem with the results of profitable industry. Because the United States do not manufacture for themselves, their gold flows in a steady stream to augment the capital of England and Germany. This can be checked only by the adoption of a system which will protect American labor. No portion of the country can have a deeper interest in this subject than Oregon.

The writer from whom we have quoted above, sums up the tendencies and results of the present system in these words:

> The American laborer, burdened with the multifarious incidents and responsibilities of his position as a citizen of a free country, is now engaged in desperate competition with the foreign laborer, who toils for back and belly alone. The Government, which is vitally interested in the contest, looks on indifferently, or opposes her own children. Every blow struck by the American workingman tends to the perfect restoration of Government credit and finance, and to the destruction of his own prospect of a livelihood; for every increase in value of the national currency is marked by a decline in the reward of his labor, and iron is at zero, while his food and clothing are at fever heat. Resumption of specie payment, unless normally attained through a revenue policy restricting excessive foreign imports, will be the knell of American manufactures, and the industry of the country will be buried in the same grave. After a period of suffering, suspension, and bankruptcy, manufacturing industry may again revive and struggle on with indifferent success, but there will be incalculable loss sustained, not alone by the manufacturer and his operatives, but by every business interest of the whole country. The political economist will again be saddened by seeing this great nation, the chosen champion of the Lord, blinded, and making sport for the Philistines. "Eyeless in Gaza at the mill with slaves!"

Large Steamer.—The Alta's New York correspondent says that the largest wooden steamer in the world is now building at the yard of Henry Steers, at Greenpoint, for the Pacific Mail Steamship Company. She is 5,000 tons burden, 300 feet in length, 50 feet in breadth, with 31 feet and 6 inches depth of hold, and will cost over $1,000,000. It is generally supposed she is one of the vessels intended for use on the route from San Francisco to China. The new steamer building by Lawrence & Foulke for Ben Holladay's line between San Francisco and Portland, Oregon, is 3,500 tons burden, 280 feet in length, 42 feet in breadth and 21 feet in depth. Her engines are in process of construction at the Allaire Works. She will cost about $500,000. Speaking of steamers, the Navy Department has, it is said, concluded to accept the Algonquin, which is now fitting out at the Brooklyn Navy Yard for a sea race with the Winooski.

Inexcusable Grumbling.—The Review complains because O'Meara had the proxies of five counties at the late meeting of the "Democratic" State Committee in this city. We think the complaint is a very unreasonable one. Isn't O'Meara the coryphæus of the party? Don't his abilities and his past services entitle him to the leadership of the "Democracy" of Oregon? The Review editors should consider that in their case—unlike that of Cassius and Brutus—the fault is not with themselves but in their stars, that they are underlings. They cannot pretend to be equal to the great leader whom they envy, as long as Jove's satellites are less than Jove.

Case of Habeas Corpus.—A man died lately in a public house in Edinburgh, and the landlord refused to give up his body to his relatives unless they undertook to pay an account for board and liquor, alleged to have been supplied to the deceased. That is what Mr. Samuel Weller would call a case of "have 'is carcass."

The Statesman learns that a new corporation is now forming at [illegible] for the purpose of bringing the water of the Rickreall to [illegible] and then using it for milling purposes. It is in the hands of good men, and we wish them entire success.

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

DATES TO JANUARY 31.

The President on Constitutional Amendments.

Washington, Jan. 28.—The following is the substance of a conversation which took place to-day between the President and a Senator not named. The President said he doubted the propriety at this time of making further amendments to the Constitution. Propositions to amend were becoming as numerous as resolutions at a town meeting. All this in his opinion had a tendency to diminish the dignity and prestige attached to the Constitution and to lessen the confidence of the people in the great charter of freedom. If more amendments are to be made he knew of none better than a simple proposition embraced in a few lines making in each State the number of qualified voters the basis of representation, and the value of property the basis of direct taxation.

The Fenian friends of Major General Sweeny, the Fenian Secretary of War, lately dismissed from the regular army for absence without leave, are making strenuous efforts to have him reinstated and are confident of success.

The French Recover Chihuahua.

Washington, Jan. 28.—Official news dated Dec. 29th has been received here from El Paso. After the occupation of the Chihuahua by French, they sent an expedition to El Paso against President Juarez, who collected at that place Aerrigos Division and made preparations to resist the invaders with every chance of success. When the French heard of this, they marched back to Chihuahua, thus abandoning the attack.

The Dunderburg

New York, Jan. 29.—The statement which appeared a few days since, in reference to the proposed purchase of the ocean ram Dunderberg, proves to be an unfounded rumor. Webb has no intention of disposing of her while our Government prizes her too highly to part with her. The ship will not be ready for service for months.

The steamship Onyaga, whose recent movements have been reported as suspicious, is now at Baltimore taking a cargo. She belongs to the Baltimore Havana and New Orleans line of steamers.

Miscellaneous.

Washington, Jan. 29.—The Commercial's Washington's special dispatch says: Congress will undoubtedly authorize the appointment of a Commissioner to have the new Post Office, in New York.

The semi-official exposition of the President's views on reconstruction and the Constitutional amendment creates quite an excitement here.

Baltimore, Jan. 29.—The steamer Richmond, of the Baltimore and Savannah line, which was wrecked on the shoals Cape Hatteras, on Wednesday, 24th inst., was valued at $90,000, and insured for $48,000 in New York offices. Most of the freight and cotton will be saved.

New York, Jan. 29th.—The Commercial's money article contains the following: Stocks continue weak.

A fire broke out on the south side of the public square last night in a room occupied by J. Christian as a lager beer saloon, spreading rapidly by Knob's barber saloon to Miller's grocery, Baldwin & Sons, leather store and George Martley's furniture house. The buildings were frame and were entirely consumed. The total loss is about $120,000. The stocks were mostly saved. Baldwin and Martley's loss is covered by insurance.

Rumor of a Provisional Government for Virginia.

New York, Jan. 29.—The Herald's Richmond correspondent says: One of the Virginia Delegation wrote from Washington last Wednesday, that it is the intention of President Johnson to supercede the present Virginia State Government by a provisional one. This has obtained credence in Richmond, and causes much commotion.

Speaker Colfax repeated his lecture, "Across the Continent," at Cooper Institute last evening before a very large audience.

Nashville, Jan. 28.—Yesterday the first colored man was introduced as a witness under the new law. The fact created some sensation.

The Pirate Semmes. Return of Secretary Seward.

Washington, Jan. 29.—Raphael Semmes, of the Pirate Alabama notoriety has, himself, prepared an argument, which was presented to the President on Saturday evening by his counsel, Judge Hughes. In this he claims the benefit of Sherman's parole.

Seward and party returned to Washington on Saturday night, on steamer De Soto having made the complete tour of the West Indies visiting St Thomas, Santa Cruz, San Domingo, Port-au-Prince, Havana etc, spending a few days at each, being cordially received. The Secretary's health is now better than during the past year.

New York, Jan. 29.—A fire yesterday destroyed the main portion of Seton Hall College, South Orange, New Jersey.

The Columbia, Maine, Insurance Company have concluded to resume business with reduced capital of two millions. Heavy marine losses this winter, have been a terrible blow to the Insurance companies and shaken confidence in their standing.

The Bank of England's returns show an enormous drain of specie.

Fears of a commercial crisis are freely expressed by English journals, and it is also surmised that the rate of discount will advance to 15 or 20 per cent.

General News.

New Orleans, Jan. 25.—The Louisiana House of Representatives adopted a resolution to appoint a special Committee to prepare amendments to the Constitution of 1864, and will not call a convention.

In the Senate steps were taken to provide for parish and district officers, and also for the election of officers in the city of New Orleans.

New York, Jan. 26.—Arrived, the steamer Germania, from Hamburg and Caledonia. Their news has been anticipated.

A new counterfeit twenty dollar note, national bank currency, has made its appearance here, and it is a very fair imitation.

Generals Sherman, Sheridan, Thomas and Meade, will meet General Grant here next week, for consultation with the President on military affairs.

General Hooker made a return yesterday to the writ of habeas corpus, issued in the case of Chas. H. Coles, charged with being a Lake Erie pirate. The return states that the prisoner is in charge of Col. Burke, commanding Fort Lafayette, and not under the control of General Hooker.

The first of the series of meetings to celebrate the Methodist centenary, was held in St. Paul's church on 4th avenue last evening, Secretary Harlan presiding, and Bishops Simpson and James being present.

St. Louis, Jan. 24.—A telegram from St. Joseph, Mo., says that ex Governor R. M. Stewart fell on the slippery pavement, to day, and fractured a leg. The dispatch further states that owing to his age and infirmities, it was believed the wound would prove fatal.

New York, Jan. 27.—A serious accident occurred early this morning, on the Hudson River Railroad near Croton. The express train was thrown from the track and two sleeping cars were smashed. Three persons are reported killed and many seriously injured.

This evening's Commercial says: Prices show a tendency to a reaction from the late decline. The report of the improving condition of affairs in London has reassured branches of business depressed by previous European news; this effect being especially apparent in government stocks and the weakness of gold.

The steamer City of New York took out this morning $300,000 in gold and the steamer Hesse $141,000, making the total for the week $797 000.

Washington, Jan. 27.—The records of the Treasury Department show that from March, 1863, to August 1865 abandoned and captured cotton is valued $1 741 000 which was seized in the valley of the Mississippi. Of this amount, $1 360 000 have been paid into the Department.

Chicago, Jan. 27.—Lieutenant Governor Bross is lecturing at the east on the Overland Journey and Pacific Railroad. Speaker Colfax is also lecturing on the same subject.

Richardson announces a book to be published describing his trip.

New York, Jan. 27.—[illegible] Wales and Pellicier, the murderers of Otero were to day, sentenced to be hanged March 9th.

Among the passengers injured by the Hudson River Railroad accident, this morning, are S. E. McEwan and wife and a man by the name of John Murphy.

Congressional.

Washington, Jan. 30.—Committee on ways and means have not yet voted on McCulloch's bill which was laid aside temporarily for [illegible]. The prospect is, that a new bill will be prepared.

The Commissioners appointed to examine the internal revenue made a lengthy report accompanying it with a draft of bill modifying the present law. The report meets only qualified approval as contemplating perpetuity of taxation and the national debt.

The President communicated to the Senate the negotiations with Mexico of 1861 for marching United States troops from Guaymas to Arizona. The correspondence opened with a letter from Senor Romero May 4th, 1861 calling attention to the Southern project for seizing Mexico and establishing slavery therein. He therefore wishes a new treaty with the United States provided no foreign power participates, lest it might become a motive or a protest for intervention by Europe in Mexico.

Mr. Seward replies, May 7th, that the rebel scheme cannot succeed and that letters have been sent to Minister Corwin [illegible] to strengthen the influence [illegible]. Mr. Seward in the [illegible] date—asks permission to march United States troops through Mexico for [illegible] Arizona. Mr. Romero responds August [illegible] giving the desired permission. Mr. Seward acknowledges the liberal confidence, and [illegible] that Mexico shall have no occasion [illegible].

Mr. Wilson introduced a bill establishing a national militia regiment of infantry in each Congressional district with provisions similar to the late draft law.

The debate on the bill conferring civil rights was resumed. Mr. Cowan called attention to the effect that it would naturalize Chinese children in California.

Trumbull said that Chinese children born here were citizens as much as German children. Considerable discussion ensued between Cowan and other Senators when Howard of Michigan took the floor in a long speech supporting the bill.

Washington, Jan. 30.—The House [illegible] the constitutional amendment [illegible] the joint committee on reconstruction without instructions.

A resolution for admitting Messrs. Kyle, Byers and Johnson of Arkansas to the privilege of the floor was rejected. Ayes 64, Noes 91.

Sixty nine members of the House have made preparations for the delivery of speeches on reconstruction. Their names have all been forwarded for that purpose and they will speak in rotation.

In the Senate Fessenden, of Maine introduced a resolution which was adopted authorizing the payment of $10 000 to defray the expenses of the joint committee on reconstruction.

Trumbull, from the judiciary committee reported a resolution declaring that John P. Stockton is entitled to a seat as Senator from the state of New Jersey.

New York, Jan. 30.—The Washington correspondent of the Chicago Tribune says: It has been difficult to convince the radical members of Congress that the reported conversation telegraphed yesterday had the President's sanction, but such is the fact, he having revised the copy and directed it to be sent to the press. In this view the whole statement is herewith telegraphed. The President said: He doubted the propriety at this time of making further amendments to the Constitution. One great amendment had already been made by which slavery had been forever abolished within the limits of the United States and a National guarantee thus given that the curse should never again exist in the land. Propositions to amend were becoming as numerous as resolutions at a town meeting, called to consider the most ordinary questions. All this in his opinion had a tendency to diminish the dignity and prestige attached to the Constitution of the country, and to lessen the respect and confidence of the people in their great charter of freedom. If however amendments are to be made to the Constitution changing the basis of representation and taxation, though he did not deem them at all necessary at the present time, he knew of none better than a simple proposition embraced in a few lines making in each State the number of qualified voters the basis of representation and direct taxation upon correct principles.

Qualified voters were for the most part men who were subject to draft and enlistment when necessary to repel invasion, suppress rebellion and quell domestic violence and insurrection. They risk their lives, shed blood, and spend all to uphold the Government and give protection, security and value to property. It seemed but just that property should compensate for the benefits thus conferred by depriving those persons incident to its protection and enjoyment. Such an amendment the President also suggested would remove from Congress all issues in reference to the political equality of the races. The President, in this connection, expressed the opinion that the agitation of negro suffrage in the District of Columbia at this time, was a mere entering wedge to the agitation of the question throughout the States and was ill timed, uncalled for, and calculated to do great harm. He believed it would engender enmity and strife between the races, and lead to a war between them which would result in great injury to both, and in the certain extermination of the negro population. Precedence, he thought, should be given to more important and urgent matters, legislation on which was essential to the restoration of the Union, the peace of the country and the prosperity of the people.

Emigration to Mexico Stopped.

New Orleans, Jan. 27.—Gen. Sheridan to day refused to allow emigrants to leave for Mexico. He is acting under instructions from Washington.

The Paraguayan War.

New York, Jan. 30.—The Herald's Rio Janeiro letter gives in full the letter of President Lopez of Paraguay, to Gen. Mitre, the Argentine President, heretofore alluded to in reports from that quarter. Instead of containing peace propositions it avows the most warlike demonstration and threatens to retaliate for alleged barbarities.

Gov. Curtin's Message.

Philadelphia, Jan. 30.—Gov. Curtin's Message was communicated to the Pennsylvania Legislature to day. It gives a gratifying financial exhibit and highly approves of the President's policy.

From Jamaica.

New York, Jan. 30.—Jamaica advices announce the arrival of Gov. Storks, who took the oath of office on the 9th.

The counsel for Mrs. Gordon also arrived from London.

The Court would open on the 23d.

Rumors About Jeff Davis.

The Tribune's Washington correspondent says rumors with more than ordinary foundation for sensation reports are rife that Jeff Davis will be specially brought to trial before a military commission. Senator Dixon, of Connecticut, is the person with whom the President had conversation as published. This conversation is creating much sensation.

Our Consul at Leghorn, under date of December 31 informs the State Department that quarantine regulations against vessels coming from Marseilles, Naples and other ports where the cholera has prevailed have been removed. The cholera has abated somewhat at Guadaloupe though retaining full force in the interior. The total number of deaths is 11,200.

Further Congressional.

Washington, Jan. 30.—Mr. Raymond spoke over three hours, taking the exact ground of the President against all amendments attacking the reconstruction committee, styling it a committee to reconstruct the government of the United States, and calling upon the House to emancipate itself from such domination. At the close of Mr. Julian's speech, who followed Mr. Raymond, Mr. Griswold, of New York, moved to recommit the whole subject to the joint committee on reconstruction without instructions, and with permission to report at any time. The vote upon this will be taken to morrow, and there seems no doubt it will succeed.

The President sent a message to Congress to day, saying it was not advisable to make public the orders and correspondence relating to General Sheridan's position on the Mexican frontier. Maj. Gen. Thomas told the reconstruction committee to day, that if the troops were wholly withdrawn from his department the agents of the freedmen's bureau and all other loyal men would be compelled to leave. Gen. Sheridan cannot attend the conference of Generals now being held here, as his presence is necessary to preserve order on the Rio Grande.

New York, Jan. 30.—The Matamoras Ranchero publishes calls by the Consuls of Great Britain and France for meetings of their respective citizens on urgent business, to receive important communications, and adopt such measures as may appear advisable.

Acquittal of Gen. Mercer.

Savannah, Ga., Jan. 29.—The Confederate Gen. Mercer was tried by a military commission for the murder of seven Union prisoners and acquitted, and released yesterday.

Reconstruction in Mississippi.

Nashville, Jan. 29.—A gentleman just arrived from the interior of Mississippi states that a few nights since the agent of the Freedmen's Bureau at P[illegible] was killed in his bed by a band of outlaws. The gentleman represents the people in that section as very violent.

Rebel Boat Burners.

St. Louis, Jan. 29.—The trial of Murphy, the alleged boat burner, pending for the [illegible] months before a military commission has been concluded. The evidence showed that the parties principally prompted by the conspiracy have fled to Mexico.

Judge Treat, in the United States District Court to day [illegible] the writ of habeas corpus [illegible] Parke and all [illegible] burner in the military prison [illegible] comply, and the respondent must be remanded to the military authorities.

Terrible Steamboat Disasters.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—The telegraph brings news of two shocking disasters by the explosion of steamers on the western waters.

The steamer Miami [illegible] exploded on Green river Kentucky, yesterday morning. The wreck floated down to Evans' Mill. It is supposed that 50 lives are lost.

The steamer M[illegible] exploded on the Arkansas river on the 28th. 130 lives lost.

Senator from Georgia.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—The Georgia Legislature yesterday elected A. H. Stephens United States Senator. He refused to accept however and on the next ballot Herschel V. Johnson was elected. The Georgia Legislature also elected Dawson A. Walker and J. L. Harris Supreme Judges.

California News.

San Francisco, Feb. 1.—A New York paper announces the death at Charleston, of Capt. W. C. Pease of the U. S. Revenue steamer Kewanee. Captain Pease was for years in command of the U. S. Revenue Cutter Wm. L. Marcy, on the Pacific coast.

The Mexican Patriotic Club here has adopted a resolution that all Mexicans residing here shall wear a badge of mourning during nine days from this date as a testimony of respect to the memory of Generals Ortega and Salazar, executed.

The Holladay steamship line will send the steamer P[illegible] to Acapulco on the 15th inst., to take her place in a semi-monthly line between Mazatlan and Acapulco, touching at San Blas and Manzanillo. This in compliance with a contract with the Imperial Government and which calls for a monthly line of steamers between this port and Mazatlan touching at Guaymas and La Paz and a semi-monthly line between Mazatlan and Acapulco. The contract is for seven years, and that portion of it calling for a semi-monthly line between the two last named points, takes effect on and after the 1st of March next.

FIREMEN'S COMPANY ELECTIONS.—The annual election of officers for the various fire companies of this city, for the coming year, took place last evening with the following results:

Willamette Company, No. 1.—John S White, Foreman; James Lang, 1st Assistant; J. L. Trust, 2d Assistant; President, Wm. McMillen; Secretary, Shubrick Norris; Treasurer, Horace Seymour; Delegates, John S. White, Wm. McMillen, and E. W. Nottage.

Multnomah Company, No. 2.—A. B. Hallock, Foreman; Joseph Buchtel, 1st Assistant; S. Skidmore, 2d Assistant; President, A. J. Butler; Secretary, W. H. Leonard; Treasurer, B. F. Goodwin; Delegates, A. B. Hallock, Joseph Buchtel, and Ben L. Norden.

Columbia Company, No. 3.—Alexander Dodge, Foreman; W. O. Bruen, 1st Assistant; Samuel Burnacin, 2d Assistant; President, Hamilton Boyd; Secretary, A. [illegible]; Treasurer, J. Koenig; Delegates, H. Boyd, B. [illegible], and A. Zeiber.

Protection Company No. 4.—F. Opitz, Foreman; Geo. [illegible], 1st Assistant; A. E. Williams, 2d Assistant; [illegible], F. A. Clark; Secretary, B. C. Coulo; [illegible], M. Moskowitz. Delegates, John Blanchard, J. Rosenheim and Jas. Bennett.

Vigilance Hook and Ladder Company No. 1.—H. W. [illegible], Foreman; V. Paris, 1st Assistant; T. M. Tompkins, 2d Assistant; H. C. Coulson, President, D. Friedrich, Secretary; M. O'Connor, Treasurer. Board of [illegible], E. W. Hodghinson, J. B. Harker and T. J. [illegible].

PUBLIC CEMETERY.—So far as we are able to learn from conversation with the people of Portland, there is a fair [illegible] in favor of the city making a purchase of the Mount Crawford cemetery grounds, East Portland. A petition presented at the meeting of the board of Councilmen, a week ago, numerously signed by influential citizens, was referred to the committee on Health and Police, who, it is hoped, will report a plan as feasible in itself as to consummate the purchase, and assure persons who have friends buried at Mount Crawford that the remains shall not be disturbed. By the city taking charge of this [illegible] there is no prospect of loss to the tax payers, as the treasury can be more than reimbursed, with interest, from the sale of lots. Portland is now of sufficient size [illegible] to make some provision for the protection of the dead. The Mount Crawford grounds—as we have [illegible]—contains a large number of our honored dead, and yet at this time there is but little more care [illegible] upon their graves—other than those of a private [illegible] than as if they were buried on the plains.

[illegible] WOOD PAVEMENT.—It will be seen by notice elsewhere, that the Common Council have decided upon paving First street, from Vine to Madison, with the Nicolson pavement. The right for the city of Portland having been purchased by gentlemen here there [illegible] no more exclusiveness in the manner of letting the contract to put the pavement on our streets, as those who own the right have decided that all may use it at 25 cents per square yard. This will throw the work open to contractors, and the advantages will be made [illegible] for the benefit of the city, and those who [illegible] will get the work to do.

[illegible] HALL.—Messrs. Lappeus & Knowles having come to the conclusion that as a public hall was very [illegible] in this city, and the men of wealth refused [illegible] in order, they would construct one according [illegible] they have at hand. On Tuesday last, under the superintendence of Mr. John Nestor, architect and [illegible], a fine building of two stories height, suitable for a hall [illegible] by 84 feet, with stores below was commenced [illegible], opposite the rooms of the Portland Library. The hall will be arranged in first rate shape, lit with gas, water, &c., and is to be completed [illegible] the style of the timbers we judge it [illegible] edifice.

[illegible]—Among other items for which money [illegible] the general appropriation bill passed [illegible] at the meeting of the Common [illegible] for the improvement of Public Parks, [illegible] the southern extremity of [illegible] street in the line designated by the [illegible] as the termination of Park Avenue, but it [illegible] the city will not allow the avenue to become [illegible]. We noticed recently that [illegible] were being fenced up entirely, between [illegible] Pine, west of Seventh street. If this is suffered, there will be no means of communication [illegible] in its vicinity for several blocks.

[illegible] PRISON COMMISSION.—We have received a copy of the Constitution and By-Laws of the association, [illegible] for its objects the amelioration of the condition [illegible] for trial, or as witnesses, [illegible] convicted, the improvement of prison and prison [illegible], the government of prisons, whether for [illegible], or the State; the aid and encouragement of [illegible] discharged prisoners, whenever such aid and [illegible] seem hopeful and wise. The Governor [illegible] is Vice President, and the remaining officers [illegible] men of high standing.

[illegible] COURT.—In Recorder's Court yesterday [illegible] Dodds, the Paris de Bordeaux, was tried by jury [illegible] of larceny by stealing stove wood, with [illegible] the Revolving Light Saloon. Sentence [illegible] to-day. A man named Smith, and [illegible] Michael Kerr, were each fined for drunkenness [illegible] they paid. Frank O. Brown, the disorderly [illegible] to jail for ten days.

[illegible]—This lady writes us from San [illegible] that, in consequence of the opera season in the city having been prolonged, she will be obliged to [illegible] her visit to Victoria, until after her return from [illegible], which will be in about six weeks' time. The [illegible] nights of the Madame's performances to [illegible].

[illegible]—We are informed, that the bark [illegible] of about six hundred tons carrying capacity [illegible] to take the place of the Cambridge in the line between this city and Honolulu, soon. The Comet has fine [illegible] accommodations, and, with the Eldridge, will [illegible] desirable means of communication with the [illegible].

[illegible]—Superintendent Huntington has received [illegible] from Washington City, which limits the extent [illegible] the reservation at Yaquina Bay is to be thrown [illegible] settlement. The Indians are to be protected in [illegible] and farms, and the Government property is [illegible].

[illegible]—The steamer Cascade is making irregular trips to the Cascades, but the Dalles boat is not able to [illegible] from some cause—probably on account of ice [illegible] from the upper river.

[illegible]—The river has so far receded as to be again [illegible] condition at this city. The whole extent [illegible] rise was about fifteen feet here. The Salem papers [illegible] at that place.

[illegible] SURRENDERED.—Larry Smith, defendant in [illegible] of larceny, being surrendered by his bondsmen, was locked up on Wednesday, but finding friends to [illegible] he was again released yesterday.

[illegible] LIBRARY.—The attention of the members of the Portland Library Association is called to the annual [illegible] on Saturday evening. As two Directors are to [illegible] a general attendance is desirable.

[illegible]—We were informed last night of the safe arrival of the steamship Sierra Nevada at San Francisco, [illegible] hours from Columbia river bar.

[illegible]—The steamship Active, Capt. Thorn, left for [illegible] at 1 o'clock P. M., yesterday, taking a very [illegible].

[illegible] TAXES.—Attention is directed to the call of the City Treasurer for the payment of the city taxes of last year. Those in arrears will do well to look to the matter.

THE OREGON.—This steamship will not take her departure until 9 o'clock to-morrow morning.

Brownlow's Whig makes a wise and just suggestion, as follows:

"New relations have sprung out of the rebellion itself, and they must be settled and recognized. Every voluntary active rebel, in the past struggle, is an enemy to the country, whose life may be lawfully taken as the penalty of his crimes. If their lives were taken their voting would be [illegible] in a lawful way. We propose to spare their lives without restoring them to political power. Let them live, but don't let them vote."

PREPARING TO LEAVE.—The Virginia City Union says:

Since the news arrived in town this morning of the Supreme Court re-affirming its former decision in the case of Milliken vs. Sloat, making greenbacks a legal tender of dues, debts, etc., a number of persons in town have been inquiring the road to Owyhee, Idaho, Montana, and other new mining camps.

Thomas Carlyle has been elected Rector of the University of Edinburgh, an office purely honorary, by a vote of the students of two to one over his opponent Mr. Disraeli. The canvass was very [illegible], the opponents of Carlyle calling him "Atheist," and the opponents of Disraeli calling him a Jew and Tory.

THE NEVADA DECISION.—The decision recently given by the Supreme Court of Nevada, declaring the Specific Contract Act null and void, has been re-argued and re-affirmed. Some of the papers are jubilant over the result, and are predicting a speedy financial millennium.

The Memphis Bulletin claims 50,000 as the present population of that place. Before the war it was but 12,000.

The total of the public debts of California, State, county and city, is said to be fully $12,000,000.

The Legislature of Washington Territory adjourned last Monday.

The Raleigh Progress says that some members of the North Carolina Legislature stated the other day that "they did not intend to pass any laws relative to the freedmen until after they got back into the Union, and then they could pass such as they pleased."

Another Change of Base.

Senator Nesmith has written another letter, (a part of which the Statesman publishes,) defining his political position. Prominent among the Senator's weaknesses is his fondness for epistolary composition. He is wonderfully anxious to have the people of Oregon understand his political views. Notwithstanding his solicitude on this point, he is in danger of being misunderstood by reason of the inability of the people to keep sight of him. He "changes his base," politically, with the ease and celerity which distinguish the cunning master of strategy; and if his constituents are put at a loss when they try to ascertain his position, it must be attributed not to their dullness, but to his versatility. In his last letter he supports President Johnson and his policy with as much earnestness as he opposed President Lincoln, and quite as warmly as he favored the martinet McClellan. Indeed, his admiration of President Johnson's measures is quite ecstatic. He takes great pains to declare that he totally opposes negro suffrage, even under any restrictions. How he reconciles this with the unconditional acceptance of the President's opinions—seeing that the President is in favor of granting free suffrage in his own State—we are not precisely informed. As to his endorsement of the Presidential plan of reconstruction, it may be remembered that the Copperheads of New York did the same thing. Our Senator has been metamorphosed from an ardent McClellan man into an enthusiastic supporter of Johnson. In studying the causes of this transmutation, our researches need not prove very difficult. The Copperheads of New York wanted the offices; hence they became the champions of the President. In this State our election approaches, and somebody is to be chosen United States Senator. Mr. Nesmith being extremely anxious for a re-election, imitates "Democratic" tactics and comes out on a Johnson platform. He and his friends think, no doubt, that his present simulated zeal for the President will fully atone for his old recusancy to the lamented Lincoln and the Union party. His adherents throughout the State are making every effort to defeat the will of the people by his re-election. But they will have to try some more cunning plan than the obtainment from him of a declaration in favor of the present Administration. The people will not "hearken to the voice of the charmers, charming never so wisely."

FROM SOUTH AMERICA.—The news from South America received by the Panama steamer is of considerable importance. We extract the subjoined account of the suicide of the Spanish Admiral Pareja, together with news from various other quarters:

The United States Consul resident at Valparaiso went on board the Villa de Madrid, on the 28th of November last, with the object of conferring with the Admiral. Their conference was a lengthy one without, however, bringing about the desired result, which was to adjust a difficulty arising from the blockade. Nevertheless Admiral Pareja ultimately gave the Consul some hopes of a settlement, and requested him to return in two days when the subject would be definitely adjusted. On the same occasion the Admiral casually asked the Consul if there were any news from shore, and received in reply "that there was nothing of importance with the exception of the capture of the Covadonga, and the sending of the prisoners to Santiago. This was the first intimation which Admiral Pareja had received of the disastrous event and, of course, he heard it with amazement. He eagerly demanded from the Consul full particulars relating to the affair, and appeared deeply affected when they were related to him. The Consul now withdrew, and according to agreement, returned two days after and found matters on board the Villa de Madrid in a state of the greatest disorder. He inquired for the Admiral and was told that he was very ill and could not then be seen, whereupon the Consul withdrew. In the meanwhile this is what occurred on board the frigate: After his interview with the United States Consul the Admiral was so affected with the news he heard that he never spoke one word afterwards to any one, and it is said that a few hours afterwards he was attacked by a disorder of the brain and fell down on the deck uttering incoherent expressions. After this, Admiral Pareja lost all control over his reason and in this state committed suicide.

THE ATTEMPT TO MURDER JUDGE FIELD.—The San Francisco Bulletin, speaking of the recent attempt to murder Judge Field at Washington, assigns a probable reason for the act, as follows:

It is believed that the object of depriving this high official of life, was to place another person upon the bench of the United States Circuit Court, before whom the Pueblo case of this city could be revived, with the prospect of a reversal of the decision in favor of the city, so that the outside lands would ultimately fall into the possession of private claimants. It has been known for some time past, that perjury, forgery, frauds, etc., were considered by many persons in California as perfectly legitimate means to use for the acquirement of property; but we had supposed assassination and murder had gone out of fashion since the late tragedy at Washington, for which the nation lost the services of the immortal Lincoln. It is now certain, however, that at least one cowardly imitator of the assassin Booth lives in California. It is hoped that such discoveries have already been made as will lead to the detection of the person or persons concerned in this plot to change judicial decisions by murder.

MEMORIALS OF FORT SUMTER.—Two fifteen inch solid shot, fired at Fort Sumter by the Union monitors, and picked up in the Fort since its surrender, have been presented to the city of Lawrence, Mass., by Capt. G. V. Fox, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, who was formerly a citizen of Lawrence. These interesting relics of the rebellion have been placed upon the front tower of the City Hall building, with tablets bearing suitable inscriptions. Mr. Fox, in his correspondence on the subject, says every member of Mr. Lincoln's Cabinet, except Postmaster General Blair, voted to surrender Fort Sumter, but the President determined to hold it if possible. He also says that but seven of these fifteen-inch shot were picked up in Fort Sumter, one of which occupies a conspicuous place in the British Museum, another is at Stockholm, and another in the State House of California.

CENSUS OF NEW YORK.—The official result of the census of the State of New York has been published. The total population of the State is set down at $3,831,777, being an increase in ten years of 651,282. The greatest increase is in New York city, 96,482; the next in Kings county, (embracing Brooklyn), 91,409; then 20,319. The greatest proportionate increase is in Kings county, being nearly thirty-four per cent. The greatest proportionate increase in a county which contains no large towns or cities is Queens and Westchester, in both of which it is somewhat over twenty-five per cent. Eleven counties show an aggregate falling off in population of 14,482. They are Alleghany, Chenango, Livingston, Madison, Oneida (in which is the city of Utica), Otsego, Schoharie, Schuyler, Tompkins, Wyoming and Yates. All the North river counties show a large increase of population.

OUR NEW FEATURE.—The silver excitement continues unabated; in fact, spite of the rain, snow and frost, it is on the increase, for our prospectors have nothing to do these wintery days but congregate together, recount their discoveries, display their specimens, test them, and compare notes. We have seen several specimens during the week from ledges discovered since our last issue. They vary somewhat in appearance; but all bear the same general characteristics. Rock from a number of new ledges has been tested by our silversmiths in town, and we have yet to learn of any one piece subjected to the test that has failed to yield silver in greater or less quantities. Patience, fellow townsmen, we'll see Jacksonville "some" place yet!—Oregon Reporter.

A SHARP OPERATION.—James Guthrie, as President of the Louisville and Railroad, is credited with a smart thing, whereby his road made $200,000 out of the war. The State of Tennessee had loaned its bonds for $300,000 to aid in the construction of the road, which was to pay interest semi-annually to the fiscal agent of the State—the Bank of Tennessee. When the bank ran off into Dixie it was of course impossible to pay, and as holders got no dividends the value of the bonds depreciated. Guthrie quietly bought them all up for the road, and the State has just received them at par, thereby canceling the debt.

Baron Rothschild once complained to Lord Brougham of the hardship of not being allowed to take his seat in Parliament. "You know," said he, "I was the choice of the people." To which the ex-Chancellor, with his usual causticity, replied, "So was Barabbas."

EASTERN ITEMS.—Late dispatches from the East give the following:

Miss. Harriet Lane, niece of James Buchanan, and his housekeeper while he occupied the White House, was married at Wheatland recently to Henry J. Johnson, a Baltimore banker.

Winslow, the principal witness against Semmes, the privateer, has arrived at Washington. Semmes's trial takes place at an early day.

The London correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, under date of December 13th, writes: Mr. Delane, editor of the London Times, was dismissed from that position on the 1st of January. The Times was to be under new auspices. This change is said to be due to the feeling that it is necessary to cultivate more friendly relations with the United States. The correspondent adds that Samson, the Money Editor of the Times, will also probably go out. It is a fact that Delane and Samson have committed the paper, and as all our wise men have changed their policy on the American question in consequence of American success, we must accept the results and shape our policy accordingly.

A few days since a bloody encounter took place in Richmond, Ky., by which several lives were lost and others will probably die. The difficulty originated in a political feud. The fight occurred in front of the Courthouse, and was participated in by eight persons. Over sixty shots were fired, and every belligerent there was killed or wounded. The end will be the death of five persons.

H. Rives Pollard, Editor of the Richmond Examiner, has been arrested and held for an attempt to murder Brooks of the New York Times.

To the Wheeling Intelligencer belongs the credit for the following truthful utterances:

Abraham Lincoln, in striking off the fetters of the negro, emancipated the white man from bonds far more ignoble than those of chattel slavery; for while the servitude of the African was the necessity of force, the abasement of public sentiment in the free States, the enacting Moloch was the voluntary concession made by moral cowardice. That era of ignorant but devilish bigotry and prejudice against all who dared assert the dignity of manhood in resistance to the exactions of the most debasing, corrupting, heathenish and diabolical system that ever contaminated the social and political institutions and degraded the moral sense of any country, can never repeat itself.

We repeat, that the white man as well as the negro has been set free.

A London letter to the Cincinnati Commercial says Gladstone is now the greatest man in England. He is the real though not the normal head of the new Ministry. He is a prodigious genius; a man of extensive classical culture, of universal knowledge, of matchless eloquence, a daring and successful financier, and, though once a Tory, of great sympathy with the popular instincts and aspirations. He is the coming man! Every word that falls from his lips is taken as big with omens of the future. It may be that he will fail, but many think he is now about to prove himself the greatest statesman England has ever produced—greater than Peel, than Pitt, than Burke, than Chatham, than Walpole. We shall see. But surely he has a marvelous combination of the great, brilliant and commanding qualities.

THE BALLAD OF BALL'S BLUFF

IN MEMORY OF [illegible] BAKER

Fronting the hostile border
And false Virginia's strand—
Where lurked the rebel warder
And gleamed the rebel brand—
We held in watchful order
The shores of Maryland

By dark Potomac's river
We mustered, rank on rank
The wind crept, like a shiver
Across us chill and dank;
Swift was the battle river
And dusky the hostile bank

But from the night-fogs gliding
[illegible] broke,
Op[en] r[an]ks like the waves dividing
Flung wide their bays at spray;
And the brave tide's foaming
Glittered through shadows gray.

Then up Virginia's verges
Our gallant chiefs in loads,
Across [illegible] surges
That bore our boats like reeds
In Freedom's Will that urges—
The Freedom's [illegible] that needs

Strong as the barrier springing
[illegible] feet we climb;
One soul our footsteps winging—
One heart beat keeping time;
While the Old Flag is flinging
High up its light sublime

The woods around us swarming
With rebel rifles' line;
But forward sternly forming
We muster line by line;
The General's words are warming
Our loyal hearts, like wine

His shattered hand, unlifted,
Hung by his noble breast;
His black plume loosely drifted
Above its loyal crest;
Beaconing from war-clouds rifted,
As vanward still he pressed.

And o'er each perilous acre,
His glance falls like the sun;
His soul, with ours partaker,
Uplifts us every one
"Good courage all!" cries Baker—
"Don't run, men, till I run!"

Then, as from huge ballista
Whirling with dreadful gyre
Opening a blood-red vista
Hurtled our volleys dire
Following the voice of Wistar—
"Boys! we have got them—Fire

Up to our gunners dying,
Bold Harvey speeds with Lee
And Coggswell stands defying,
And Stewart's form we see,
Where iron death's are flying,
And rebel foemen flee

Oh! what an hour of wonder!
Divine with dauntless pain;
When ranks were cloven asunder
And lives were mown, like grain;
And men stood calmly under
While deaths fell thick as rain

High on those mountain ridges
Our shattered lines we clasp,
Pent in by slippery ledges,
And girt by treacherous foes;
The while, from woodland edges,
Their ambush narrower grows

In vain, the conflict sharing,
Manhattan's braves unite;
All vainly—forward faring—
Our Californians fight;
In vain, with stubborn daring
New England's heroes smite

Down by the woodland wickets,
Bold Wistar holds his men;
They drive the foemen's pickets—
They sweep the midway glen;
And back to rebel thickets
They hurl the war again

Wild was the deed they ventured—
Pealing defiant shouts;
Up where the foemen centered—
Into that rebel rout—
Six score of heroes entered;
Never a score came out!

But from those woodland marges,
Reckless with rebel spleen
Down bore the [illegible] charges
Filling the meadows green;
Under our guns—like barges—
Choking the deep ravine

Quick, through the brazen spiral,
They ran the cartridge down;
"Look to the left!" [illegible]
Pointing where rebels creep!
Then, on their pathway gyral,
On! how the mad bolts leap!

Well aimed and sorely frightening,
That shot made fearful room,
It smote the foe, like lightning,
It scooped a [illegible] tomb;
Then, for a moment brightening,
Hope rose athwart the gloom

But vainly thus we held them,
In vain at every pass
Thrice and still thrice repelled them—
Mowing them down like grass,
Still, as our volleys felled them,
Rose they in swarming mass

And Coggswell's wrist was severed;
And Ward lay on the heath;
Bold Wistar's arm was shivered—
His saber dropped beneath;
Our General's hand delivered
The good sword to its sheath

Now came the furious struggle
When hand to hand we fought
Each man his foeman singling,
His foeman's life-blood sought;
Each nerve with hatred tingling—
Each pulse with passion fraught

Once more the rebels rallied,
Behind their [illegible] cloak;
From forest-gaps they sallied,
Through clouds of rolling smoke;
Like demons, wild and pallid
Upon our left they broke

"Who are those men?"—half doubting,
Our gallant General calls;
"Stand firm!" he cries—loud shouting,
We stand, like living walls
Then earth with fire seems spouting—
And then—the General falls!

Oh! Heaven! that wild collision!
The rush, the curse, the blow!
Beiral—with fierce decision—
Has struck the murderer low;
Then o'er our gory vision,
A red tide seemed to flow!

That sight!—Oh! who may brave it!—
Where Baker's body lies!
The red tide seems to lave it!—
"For God's sake! Harvey cries—
Boys! will you let them have it?"
Then to the press he flies

Our angry [illegible] sounding,
Into that [illegible];
Full on the [illegible] is bounding,
We [illegible] them [illegible] once more,
Our [illegible] firm [illegible] binding,
[illegible] raised it from its gore

[illegible] were [illegible] lowering;
Our teeth were set with hate;
Each man of all [illegible] towering
A giant, stern as fate;
The traitors, backward cowering,
Gave us a pathway straight;

And thus we bore our Leader,
Down from the mountain fray;
Brave, like a lofty cedar,
Grand in his fall he lay;
God—of all hearts the Reader—
Knows how we grieved that day!

Full many a glorious battle
Has proved our soldier-stuff;
Through years of war's wild rattle—
Through years of trials tough;
Since loyal men, like cattle,
Were shot down at Ball's Bluff

But now a conflict older
Did richer laurels bear;
For never a struggle bolder
Did hero [illegible] share,
Where shoulder close to shoulder
They died—in grand despair

Long may that red [illegible] God's acre
The seeds of breed to keep!
Sweet to our Lord and Maker
The Harvest that we reap!
Long may the blood of Baker
Hallow that storied steep!

Where the red sunset [illegible]
O'er the Pacific spread;
There the brave Chief reposes—
Calmly in Glory's bed!
Sweet be the breath of [illegible]
Over that good [illegible]

The Death-bed of Corwin

Special correspondence of the Cincinnati Gazette

WASHINGTON December 17

The social party at Mr Wetmore's the other evening which was destined to end so tragically was one of the pleasantest and most brilliant assemblages of distinguished Ohioans ever gathered under one roof at the capital The Supreme Court Cabinet, Senate House Bar and Army contributed to grace the occasion The great head of one of the three co-ordinate divisions of our National Government mingled in the crowd Three ex Governors of Ohio were for a time in a little group together—a group (never nine to be gathered again) that called up how much of the State's greatness and historic renown Two ex Secretaries of the Treasury were there The stately head figure of the Ohioan who battered [illegible] Sumter was conspicuous the Paymaster General of the army, the M[illegible] of Maryland [illegible] of Staff whose name is inseparably associated with Chickamauga furnished other centres in a representation of the army by fitting a State which has contributed half the cadets generals of the war Senators were there whose career is part of the nation's best history There were old men whose biographies record the political life of the State young men who had grown up to the responsibilities and work the older were leaving, ornaments of the bench and of the bar Greetings were everywhere cordial wit and anecdote and genial chat filled the busy air It was more like a rare reunion of College Alumni than like a gathering of many and worldly politicians But the wit and merriment were to be hushed by one of those awful strokes, which as the greatest of English rhetoricians said in his speech at Bristol, too [illegible] tell us what shadows we are and what shadows we pursue Of this brilliant assemblage a plain old lawyer, without place or power was the ruling spirit Old political antagonists and rivals met with warm cordiality [illegible] hung upon his words and [illegible] then they seated him in an easy chair by the wall half the company clustered about to listen to his rare talk and watch the wonderful play of his features With some of those present he had risen to a plane above the jealousies and contests of their earlier years to the younger he had come to seem a great tradition [illegible] perhaps of [illegible] whom the past [illegible] ranked him in the estimation of the generation now passing away but a little below Webster or Clay in intellectual grasp and in surpassing eloquence to whom [illegible] family only as stories their fathers told about the Tom Corwin of the olden time

Oh [illegible] about him last Friday evening as if his jokes were very attractive He was in the best of spirits and looked better than his friends remembered seeing him for months But a few days before he had returned from his Ohio home where he had gone to attend the wedding of his youngest daughter His faculties seemed all attuned and stimulated by the pleasant incident as well as by the warm and affectionate greetings with which he was received Making his way through the crowd of men who had grown into prominence under his eye he was settled at the side of the room and at once drawn into animated talk His old and favorite law student Gen Schenck, came to talk of the home wedding Chief Justice Chase hastened to greet him Senator Ben Wade installed himself by his side and begged him to tell a favorite story "I have not seen him for ten years past as much like the old Tom Corwin of my boyhood," said Gen Durbin Ward his law student and subsequently his partner "There's but one Tom Corwin in the world" enthusiastically exclaimed another as he moved back a little out of the group where he had been swallowing every syllable

Thus surrounded by the brilliant and distinguished in the State old rivals and antagonists meeting him with admiring warmth, seeing all about him the men who had grown up under him, every one attentive to his lowest tone and slightest gesture, Governor Corwin must have regarded it as one of the sunniest episodes in his downward way of life.

By and by supper was announced Ben Wade took his arm, helped him at the staircase and found a seat for him on a sofa. He would eat nothing—only taking a couple of oysters and a glass of water But his flow of genial anecdote and sparkling wit, varied now and then by one of those touches of pathos or one of those suggestive and far reaching political reflections he knew so well how to apply, continued with unabated brilliancy Some of the Ohio belles who graced the capital were on the other side of the room, but even from them he drew away listeners, till he and Wade, who sat beside him on the sofa, were fairly hemmed in by a circle that embraced half the people in the room His tones however grew unusually slow and men were bending down, trying to catch every syllable

He had been talking of Brazil, and replying to a remark of our Consul at Rio Janeiro, who had just been speaking to him of Don Pedro, the Emperor he said "Yes Don Pedro, I'm sure is fine man, what in fact we would call (with the indescribable epitome of all possible jokes in the sudden play of his features) in our country a popular man Why, sir so high do I rate his popular qualities, that if we had him in Warren county would elect him Sheriff—no mean test of popularity sir" Then he began to speak of Mexico first in the same jocose vein, telling how when they began shooting and cutting throats all around and within sight of the capital, he came to the conclusion that the country didn't suit a gentleman of steady habits, and so he came home "A French man came to me—smart fellow whom Maximilian sent He would be so distressed if because the French flag came, the American flag should leave —confound his politeness! But if I had to govern Mexico under the Empire, I'd make that French man [illegible]" From this he diverged into more serious talk of Mexican affairs; speaking with all his old fervor and gesticulating freely. For a few [illegible] his voice gradually grew lower so that even Wade, sitting at his side, could not hear, then his head dropped on his breast—a common movement with him when he had finished a train of thought.

The strained attention of the circle was broken, and men began to notice that the room was oppressively warm. Wade rose to get a breath of fresh air, and there was a general movement Suddenly Gov Corwin was observed to extend his hands as if groping in the dark and say, "Room, a little room, it is very warm" Some one took him by the arm and helped him to rise and a hurried whisper ran round, "Make room for Gov Corwin he is fainting with the heat" One and another aided him as he tottered to the door. Durbin Ward was now trying to hold him up, but his wounded arm was too weak, and he called to Garfield; another took him on the other side, and still another sprang down the staircase in front, and helped to support his weight The feet of the stricken old statesman dragged helplessly behind him He was carried in and laid down on a bed in an adjacent chamber His right hand was lifted up and laid over his breast it fell helplessly back upon the bed The case was plain—his whole right side was paralyzed He had not spoken since he asked in the upper room for fresh air, but as he noted the shocked expression with which those about him saw the right hand fall, he lifted up the other, open and shut the fingers, as if to say, "I know what has happened, but this you see is all right"

Some threw up the windows piled wet towels on his forehead and tore open his collar others hurried out for doctors, still others carefully piled blankets on the lower part of his person

Observing his wistful look, I bent over and asked him if the pillows were properly adjusted or if we could do anything more for him till the doctor came The response was in a whisper but quite audible, "No it will do very well Beyond a simple "Yes" or "No," once or twice repeated in answer to questions within the next hour, these were his last words He lay, gasping sometimes as if in suffocation then again for a few moments breathing almost easily

Presently Col Bliss an army surgeon, the first medical man who could be found hurried in He asked scarcely a question, lifted the lifeless hand felt the pulse at wrist and temple and we read his verdict in his face as he turned away to order mustard plasters and whatever other poor devices medical skill would bring to bear against the inevitable A few moments later Dr Lincoln entered, then soon afterward Surgeon General Barnes They agreed on what had been done and on the utter uselessness of all their well meant efforts

WOULD RESPECTFULLY CALL THE ATTENTION [illegible] Billiard Tables to the [illegible] tables manufactured exclusively [illegible]

At the Billiard C[ongress] [illegible] 1863 composed of all the first class players of America It was unanimously resolved that tables of our manufacture should be used at all matches [illegible] championship as the best and only [illegible]

The Billiard Tables have received the unqualified approval of all the best players and most competent judges who have [illegible] pronounced them unequaled for general excellence and durability

[illegible] patents for improvements in Billiard Tables have been granted to us by the United States Patent Office [illegible] obtained a Patent from [illegible] for an improvement in Billiard C[ushions]

[illegible] the construction of our tables, a variety of [illegible] by means of [illegible] a scientific and mechanical [illegible] in Billiard manufacture

Having a long experience and thorough knowledge of all the [illegible] of Billiards, and constantly on hand a large stock of the best and thoroughly seasoned materials, we are prepared to furnish everything required in the Billiard line with unprecedented dispatch

The eminent French Billiard Player M Berger has [illegible] the following [illegible]

New York 2d August 1861

On the eve of leaving the United States, I am happy to declare to all amateurs of Billiards that after a tour of [illegible] through the principal cities I have been enabled to judge in a satisfactory manner of the superiority of the Billiard Tables manufactured by Phelan & Collender The system of manufacturing is superior, that I am happy to introduce their style of cushion into France, [illegible] united to the manufacture of American Billiard Tables that of the French Tables, of remarkable excellence [illegible] For these reasons I am happy to [illegible] declaration

LUNG BALSAM!

The Remedy for Curing

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS,

Asthma, Croup,

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing [illegible] of the lungs It excites expectoration and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect, that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS' TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION! IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system "THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time
